

WELCOME TO THE 'NEW SITUATION.'

Put simply, I am a new teacher to you and you are a new student to me. The idea of this sheet is to get beyond all the daft intro starter stuff and start devouring the main course. There are 3 sections here - please fill them in honestly so that the waiter can bring in that steaming delicacy from the hot weary kitchen. ;)

PART 1: FILL IN THE GAPS.

You may have seen me about with a very stupid looking arm sling. Use the space below (and any extra space on the back to make a stab at how I got an 'impressive'* fractured left elbow). Make some brave guesses. Great respect goes to the best answers across the school.

**that's what they said at the accident and emergency department at the Royal Sussex Hospital in Brighton when they'd x-rayed it.*

PART 2: FILL IN MY GAPS ABOUT YOU.
You clearly have some important things in your life, things that you would say make you who you are. Try and summarise these in the time available. Use the back or extra paper (attach and label it!) if you run out.

Put your name and form in here:

Think of a symbol for yourself as well.

PART 3: HOMEWORK (OH YES PEOPLE!)

Okay okay, don't have a panic attack over it. I made up this new website for the RS department at Sion School. Have a look at it and come to next lesson with some thoughts on whether it is any good and how you might want to put stuff on it. There is an open secret waiting if you look hard enough.
